

Water Supply Update

Serving the Community of Oxford

Weather Trends

Precipitation for January was 2.27 inches, which is 1.24 inches below the 10-year average precipitation for the month of January. February was also slightly below average at 3.17 inches.

Water Supply and Demand

Water demands through the month of January were normal for this time of year. February was approximately 8% above the 10-year average. The average amount of water delivered to our system to meet demands in January was 557,000 gallons per day (GPD) and 624,000 GPD in February.

Recent and Upcoming Water Main Upgrades

Oxford's water mains may be out of sight but they're never out of Aquarion's mind. To maintain water quality and reduce service disruptions caused by broken water mains, we have an ongoing program of distribution system improvements.

The most frequent work involves flushing mains to remove sediments that can cause discolored water. The most visible work takes place when we replace old or damaged mains, often in concert with local road improvement projects. Here's the update on recent projects in Oxford:

- Prospect Hill Tank Rehab – To maintain our high standards of water quality and service, we've scheduled a rehabilitation project for the Prospect Hill tank. Construction bids are due in February 2021 and work is scheduled to begin this spring.
- Church Street – This coming spring we'll be replacing 1000 feet of water main running from Forest Street to the end of Church Street. As always, we'll work closely with the Town to minimize traffic impacts and service disruptions. Bids are due in Feb 2021 with construction starting in early spring.

Community Involvement and Donations

Aquarion Water Company and the Oxford Lions Club sponsored a food drive along with a drive by to see Santa Claus on the common at the bandstand in December. Aquarion also made a donation to the Oxford Firefighters Association in January.

On February 27, the Oxford Lions Club and Aquarion sponsored a food drive at the bandstand in Oxford Center.
